Shochu (Distilled Spirit)

Shochu is Japan's other indigenous alcoholic beverage, but unlike sake, Shochu is distilled. It is made from one of several raw produce, such as sweet potato, rice, soba (buckweat) and wheat. A few places even make Shochu from brown sugar and more intriguing ingredients like chestnuts and other grains. Each of the raw produce gives a very distinct flavour and aroma, that make the gamut from smooth and light to peaty, earthy and strong.
